Honorable Joseph L. Alioto, Mayor
City and County of San Francisco
200 City Hall
San Francisco, California

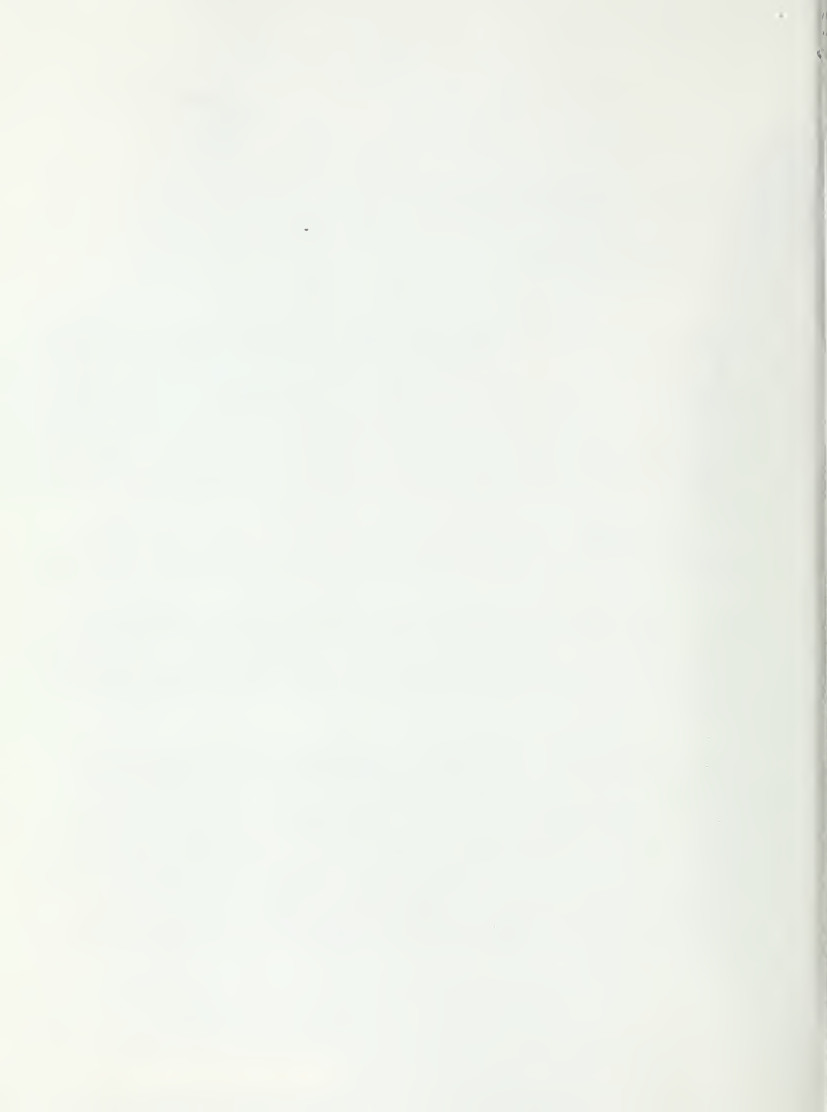

Dear Mayor Alioto:

I am submitting herewith for your approval the final report of the 1969 session of the California State Legislature. The report contains disposition of all bills on which the City adopted official legislative policy. A total of 4,447 bills were introduced by members of the California State Legislature and were individually reviewed, together with all amendments, by this office. Those bills and amendments affecting any department of the City and County of San Francisco were forwarded to the department head. The City and County of San Francisco took a policy position on 501 pieces of legislation. Your Legislative Representative was instructed to support, oppose or watch each of these 501 bills as they moved through both houses of the Legislature. It is interesting to note this is over 100 bills more than any previous session.

The Legislature was in session for just short of eight months, starting in the first week of January and finishing the Regular Session at 4 a.m. the morning of August 9th, and returning for the one week Veto Session in September.

At this point it is well to point out that the adoption of State Proposition 1-A in effect puts the Legislature on what amounts to a full time basis. It also eliminated the past practice of having a legislative session in the odd numbered years and a budget session in the even numbered years. The 1969 session saw the return of another annual session with every indication that they will continue to run to mid-August and possibly lengthen into September or beyond as time goes on.

One other factor of interest to San Francisco and the people of Northern California generally is the effect of reapportionment of the Legislature as effected in 1966 by the United States Supreme Court decision applying the principle of "one man, one vote" to both houses. This reapportionment to a basis of straight population representation in both houses throws the balance of votes to the heavily populated area of Southern California, namely, Los Angeles, Orange, and San Diego Counties and those counties contiguous thereto. I am sure it is needless to say that this makes San Francisco's position different than it has been in past years and, from hereon, requires careful and thoughtful consideration of all policy positions taken by the City of San Francisco on legislative proposals as well as diligent and constant contact and informative work on the part of your Legislative Representative and those working with him.

Legislation of major interest to San Francisco and, of course, to Alameda and Contra Costa Counties, included Senate Bill 2, Sherman, the BART bill. This bill was the subject of four major hearings in both houses of the Legislature and made available 150 million dollars for the completion of the BART system, by mandating an increase in the sales tax of 1/2 percent in the three counties affected. This proposal was the subject of long and heated debate and was opposed by many legislators because of the method of funding, namely, the sales tax. The 1968 session had failed to pass other proposals of funding the BART deficit and the Governor had said the only piece of legislation he would sign into law would be the sales tax proposal. "Roma locuta est, lis finita est."

One other piece of legislation was Assembly Bill 2057, Knox, et al., Bay Conservation and Development Commission, which authorizes continuance of B.C.D.C. and prohibits indiscriminate filling of the bay and extends jurisdiction of the Commission inland 100 feet from the shoreline. On this subject there were a total of eleven different bills introduced which became the subject of prolonged and very exciting hearings before various committees of both the Assembly and the Senate. Assembly Bill 2057 originally proposed that the Commission take jurisdiction over an area of 1000 feet from the shoreline. The proposed jurisdiction generated strong opposition from practically every city and county bordering on San Francisco Bay or its tributaries. San Francisco's policy was to support B.C.D.C. but made no particular reference to the shoreline extension. At no point did your Legislative Representative oppose B.C.D.C.; in fact, we actively supported B.C.D.C. However, because the extension of jurisdiction inland could possibly effect jurisdiction over the Port of San Francisco, Yacht Harbor, and the Airport, we held many meetings with the authors of the B.C.D.C. bills and their proponents pointing out to them jurisdictional conflicts and possible ensuing litigation that might result from their acquiring jurisdiction over more inland area than was absolutely reasonable and necessary for the purposes of bay conservation. As a result, compromises were worked out which established jurisdiction over 100 feet and included other provisions whereby the Port of San Francisco and the San Francisco Airport are able to continue their normal management and development programs.

Another piece of legislation of major interest to San Francisco was Senate Bill 4, Richardson. This bill started out in the Senate as legislation which would return home rule powers to the counties and cities for the regulation of certain police matters which have been a clouded area for the past several years. Specifically it addressed itself to topless and bottomless performances, pornography and other such issues. This is the form in which it passed the Senate. At the same general time, San Francisco's local ordinance for the registration of firearms was before the California Supreme Court awaiting decision as to its constitutionality. The Supreme Court decided that the San Francisco ordinance was constitutional and valid. Senate Bill 4 was then amended in the Assembly committee, and all of the original contents were stricken out and new provisions amended in. Senate Bill 4 then became a bill which reserved to the State the right to occupy wholly the field of regulation and registration of firearms. At this juncture the City of San Francisco changed its policy position on Senate Bill 4 from one of support to oppose. Nevertheless, the bill was enacted into law in the closing days of the session and was subsequently signed by the Governor.

Assembly Bill 413, Porter, the Water Quality Control bill. San Francisco's policy position was in general support of the broad provisions of this bill in regard to the improvement of water quality control. However, we were opposed to one of its original provisions which levied a fine of $6,000 a day for each separate incident of violation by any city, county, or city and county. The bill was finally amended to make it a maximum of $6,000 a day for each day any number of violations occur.

Assembly Bill 1618, Bagley. This bill proposed to levy a 14 percent tax on municipally-owned public utility systems selling electricity to private users. The City of San Francisco opposed the bill and the proponents of the bill eventually amended it so that it did not apply to the City of San Francisco; however, we had no part in the introduction of the amendment and advised the committees holding hearings on the bill we were still opposed to it because we felt it was a bad precedent as it could lead to the taxing of municipally-owned water systems, transportation systems, etc., as well as municipally-owned power systems. It was subsequently referred to interim committee for further study.

Bills which the City asked to have introduced and which were passed by both houses were:

Senate Bill 144, Moscone. Adds municipal airports to the institutions and buildings on the premises of which driving, parking or stopping of vehicles or animals is prohibited unless in accordance with the conditions and regulations established by the governing body or office. This gives our airport police the authority needed for traffic control.

Senate Bill 605, Moscone. Increases filing fee in the San Francisco Municipal Court from $7 to $9.50.

Senate Bill 644, Moscone and Marks. Increases sheriff's keeper fee for one keeper from $18 to $25 per 8-hour period and increases total maximum fee for any keeper in any 24-hour period from $36 to $50 per day.

Senate Bill 1253, Moscone and Marks, and Assembly Bill 1668, Foran, are duplicate bills and both were enacted and signed by the Governor. They release state tidelands interest in two blocks of Davis Street.

Assembly Bill 1955, Burton. Amended the Burton Act and extended protection to lessees who construct improvements as well as to the City.

Assembly Bill 1956, Burton. Amended the Burton Act to protect the rights of revenue bond holders and other third parties in the event of a reversion or other transfer of Harbor Commission lands.

The three above mentioned bills were vital to the continuance of the development of downtown San Francisco and the San Francisco Port development program.

One of the other City's policy positions was a bill repealing a current Revenue and Taxation Code section prohibiting local governments from levying an income tax. Unfortunately, we could not get a single member of the Legislature to introduce this legislation.

Generally the 1969 session of the Legislature was a "hold the line" experience for practically all of the cities and counties in California. There was an atmosphere of ignoring the home rule guarantees in the State Constitution and a tendency to enact more legislation which would tend to break down local autonomy. In addition, there were a great number of bills which shifted the burden of problems heretofore carried and financed by the State wholly or partially to the counties. Much of the time of your Legislative Representative and the staff was spent working against these bills. We are happy to say that in most respects we were successful. This success was in no small way due to the complete and very capable cooperation from the League of California Cities and the County Supervisors Association. This may be an indication of some of the problems with which cities and counties may be confronted in future legislative sessions.

It was interesting to note that during the 1969 session of the Legislature many cities and counties in California which never before had legislative representatives present in Sacramento were represented at this session and have made or are making plans to keep permanent representatives in Sacramento henceforth. Also, some of the larger cities and counties are increasing their legislative office staffs and have established year-round offices in Sacramento because of the annually increasing length of the session.

The legislative delegation from San Francisco with Senator George R. Moscone as Chairman and including Senator Milton Marks, Assemblymen John L. Burton, Willie L. Brown, John F. Foran and Leo T. McCarthy, were not only cooperative at all times but put themselves out to accommodate and assist the City and its representatives on any and every issue.

I would be extremely remiss if I did not express my heartfelt appreciation for the advice, assistance and cooperation given me by the staff that worked with me during the legislative session. To Mr. McMorris K. Dow, Mr. Herman Papa and Mr. Ed Rothman of the City Attorney's office and to Miss Betty Sims, the secretary in the Legislative Representative's office, "thanks a million."

Respectfully submitted,

John F. Shelley
Legislative Representative
